Heridas bajo la lluvia (Literatura Rey Lear) (Spanish Edition) Stephen Crane

Dos años antes de su muerte, Stephen Crane viajó como corresponsal de prensa norteamericano a la Guerra de Cuba que enfrentó a España contra Estados Unidos. Fruto de esa experiencia escribió Heridas bajo la lluvia, que hasta ahora jamás había sido traducida ni publicada en español. Famoso mundialmente por la novela El rojo emblema del valor, donde por primera vez relató con lenguaje preciso y directo los horrores de la violencia bélica, Crane retoma en Heridas bajo la lluvia el mismo asunto e indaga en la condición humana, sometida en las trincheras a la presión de la miseria, el hambre y el miedo. La agilidad de sus diálogos, su capacidad para crear personajes creíbles y cercanos al lector, la potencia de sus imágenes literarias y su ironía ofrecen una visión sorprendente de la Guerra de Cuba por su crudeza y modernidad. Este relato, ambientado en paisajes como la bahía de La Habana, Guantánamo o la colina de San Juan, describe la vida cotidiana de soldados y periodistas, incapaces de comprender realmente los motivos por los que se enfrentan a la muerte.
